INTRODUCTION.

This genealogy has been prepared from material collected from time to time by the publisher, and which has been furnished him by relatives, with the end in view of preserving in enduring form a concise record of the William Snow family, and that all interested may be in possession of a copy.

It would not be at all surprising that in a work of this kind, involving as it does so many names and dates, that some errors and inaccuracies may have appeared, although due care has been exercised to make it as nearly correct as possible.

The publisher desires to express his grateful acknowledgments to Dr. Louis F. Snow, Mrs. Louise B. Clarke, and to others related to him by kinship, who have so kindly assisted him by furnishing much available material and through whose efforts the publication of this work has been made possible.

He is also greatly indebted to Mr. C. E. Leonard, Secretary-General of the "Mayflower Descendants," for valuable information concerning our family.

THE WILLIAM SNOW FAMILY.

List of Abbreviations.—b., born; m., married; d., died: mos., months; yrs., years.

1 William Snow was born in England in 1624, was brought to this country by Richard Derby in the year 1635, to whom he was apprenticed and assigned to Edward Doten, of Plymouth, Mass., in 1638, to serve him seven years. He was of age in 1645, and his name is found among those able to bear arms at Plymouth in 1643. He settled at an early date in Duxbury, Mass., but probably was not a householder or not married in 1645. He was among the first settlers of the town of West Bridgewater, Mass., and took the oath of fidelity among the first in 1657. He married Rebeckah Browne, daughter of Peter Browne, who came in the Mayflower, 1620.* He died in 1708, aged 84 years. He had been living with his son William. His will is dated 1699, and proved in 1708.

In a large volume bound in vellum, now in the Roll Office, Chancery Lane, London, are records of a few of the early emigrants to New England. On the cover of the volume containing the earliest records yet discovered is this inscription: "A Booke of Entrie for Passengers by ye Comission and Souldiers according to the statutie passing beyond the Seas, begun at Christmas, 1631, and ending at Christmas, 1632." In it were originally about two quires of paper, all of which is filled with the records indicated on the cover. The front of the book appears to have been intended for the entry of the names of soldiers. The other end for emigrants, travelers, traders, etc. The part containing these entries is entire. The volume is not paged, but the dates follow in order, which is ample for reference.

The first entry of names of persons for New England is on page 6. The next volume, containing records of persons emigrating to New England, is also in the Roll Office. It was formerly among he records and documents at Carlton Ride (on the northerly side of St. James Park, now 1859 being demolished). I should not say it was found there for I am not aware that it was ever lost, but like thousands of other papers and books of records it was deposited there for safe keeping. But during the two hundred and twenty-four years which have elapsed since the volume was made, it has during some part of that period not been very safely kept for near a third of it has been damaged by laying long in water or a damp place; yet this damage does not extend but two or three inches from the foot of the first pages and nearly the whole of it can be read. The volume contains about three quires of foolscap paper and is bound in vellum.

On the vellum wrapper or cover is this inscription:

"The Register of the names of all ye Passenger (s) which Passed from ye Port of London for an whole yeare ending at xmas 1635"

XII Jo April in 1635 (following the entries of the passenger lists of the "Elizabeth and Ann" and fo the increase) occurs the following:—In the Suzan and Ellin, Edward Payne Mr. for New England. These parties herein, under expressed have brough certificate from the Minister and Justices of their Conformitie and that they are no Subsedy men. Then follows the list of fifty-five persons among whom appears 40 II JOHN,[4] b. 1762; m. 1st, Mary Ames, 1784; 2d, Hannah Hayward, widow of Nathaniel Perkins.

16 Joseph Snow[3] (Joseph[2] William[1]), called Deacon Snow, was born Sept. 7, 1690, at Bridgewater, Mass. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. John[2] and Elizabeth (Ames) Field of East Bridgewater. Elizabeth was born in Bridgewater, Aug. 4, 1698; died April 15, 1768, in her 70th year.

He went to Easton, Mass., before 1728, was a selectman in 1729, and afterwards to Providence, R. I. In March, 1732, Mr. Belcher, the minister in Easton, bought of Deacon Joseph Snow the land and buildings that became his homestead property. In 1733 as it appears by the records of the First Congregational Church in Providence, Rev. Josiah Cotton baptized Mary, daughter of Deacon Joseph and Elizabeth Snow. He was called Deacon in 1738 in a deed given by him. Judge Staples in his annals of Providence says: "During the time that Josiah Cotton had the pastoral charge of the First Congregational Society, a part of his church and congregation seceded from his watch and care. The seceders deemed his preaching destitute of sound evangelical principles. They accused their pastor of preaching 'damnable good works.' The final separation took place on the 7th day of March 1743. Among the seceders were Deacon Joseph Snow, Benjamin Cary, Thomas Knowlton, Alexander M'Crary, Solomon Searle, Peter Tefft, John Paine, Joseph Snow, Jr. (afterwards their minister), Ebenezer Knight, and Barzillai Richmond, together with fifteen females. These composed a large part, if not a majority, of Mr. Cotton's church at the time, and it is believed they claimed to be the first church, in opposition to Mr. Cotton and his adherents. They began religious meetings by themselves, and opened for the worship of God the first meetings that were statedly attended and maintained on the west side of the river. In the language of the record of Mr. Cotton's church, "they set up a separate meeting, where they attended to the exhortations of a lay brother, who had been brought up in the business of house carpentry." "Every method for healing the uneasiness that had arose, proved fruitless and vain; enthusiasm raged with a most furious impetuosity. These held separate meetings at a private house, where they were entertained on the Lord's day with loud and vociferous declamations on the downfall of Babylon, and on the necessity of coming out and being separate, not touching the unclean thing; and such like exhortations were liberally held out." The separatists were suspended from Mr. Cotton's church on the 25th of March, 1744. —Staples' Annals of Providence, pp. 449-450-451.

In 1783 "the fair characters and exemplary lives" of such as had been formerly suspended from Mr. Cotton's church in 1744 compelled that church to take off their censure, and to restore them to full fellowship.—Staples, p. 452.

Joseph[3] Snow was elected to the office of Ruling Elder of the Beneficent Congregational Church, Oct. 14, 1743, and held the office until his death. He died July 24, 1773, in his 83d year. His grave is marked by a large slate stone in lot in North Burial ground.

41 JOSEPH SNOW[4] (Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), was born in Bridgewater, Mass., Mar. 26, 1715, admitted to the Beneficent Congregational Church, Providence, R. I., May 7, 1738. He was pastor of this church for fifty years, from 1743. M. 1st, Nov. 1, 1737, Sarah Field, daughter of Zachariah and Abigail Field; she was born Aug. 9, 1710; admitted to the church Feb. 21, 1746; she died July 19, 1753; m. 2d, Mar. 14, 1754, Rebecca Grant, of Boston; she was admitted to the church Sept. 1, 1754, and died Sept. 30, 1774; m. 3d, Oct. 24, 1775, Mrs. Margaret Proctor; she was voted into the church Sept. 24, 1788.

Joseph Snow in his youth was taught the trade of house carpentry, and was a self-made, self-reliant man who possessed rare qualities that were brought into prominence when he assumed the pastorate of the church with which he had united five years before. Dr. Mark Tucker said of him: "His very appearance attracted attention and commanded respect. He was neat in his person; methodical in his habits; untiring in his labors." His interest and enthusiasm took a practical turn in the early days of his charge when the services having been for some time held at his own residence, he became the chief agent in the erection of a meeting house. It is told that he "went into the forests with his brethren to cut the timber and actually wrought himself in the building of the house," which was completed in 1750. He gave his time and heart to his work "through a period of fifty years with scarcely as much pecuniary reward as some ministers in our large cities receive in a single year; and there is no word in the records of his financial difficulties and no trace of discontent at the trials of his lot. His church increased until it numbered one hundred and forty families. During the Revolution "piety and patriotism walked hand and hand." The church records were kept in his own beautiful handwriting with the utmost accuracy — a marvel of chirography which is still preserved in Providence.* This "wise and prudent shepherd" preached to the end of his long life "with unabated zeal, and his pastorate was full of pious and elevating influences to the whole community." (See "Sketches on Congregationalism," by Rev. James G. Vose, D. D.) He died April 10, 1803, in the 89th year of his age. The sermon at his funeral was preached by Dr. Stephen Gano, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Providence, from the text: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." He says: "If uniform piety, unshaken faith in the divine government, a persevering attachment to the religion of Jesus Christ, an ardent love to the souls of men, an exemplary life of godliness and a sweet, serene composure in prospect of the approaching dissolution of the body, give evidence of being approved of God, we may justly conclude our friend and father in the Gospel is now mingling his songs of praise among the spirits of the just made perfect, enjoying the reward promised to the faithful laborer."†

He married 2d, 1789, Sarah, daughter of Joseph and Lucy (Hampton) Otis of Montville, Conn. She was the great-great-granddaughter of Rebecca Pabodie, granddaughter of John Alden of the Mayflower, and was born in Norwich, Feb. 12, 1766; died in Providence at the home of her daughter June 11, 1862, aged 96 years and 4 months. Capt. Benjamin Snow was a merchant of Norwich, Conn., of the firm "Woodbridge & Snow," extensively engaged in shipping and trade with China and the West Indies. He was a well educated man of courteous, friendly manner, and very hospitable. He was much respected and was often called upon to arbitrate between parties at variance, and for a time served as Justice of the Peace. His penmanship (a gift inherited from his father, Rev. Joseph Snow) was quite remarkable, and was very clear and steady when he had passed the fourscore limit. One letter now in possession of the family which covers two pages of a large sheet was so beautifully written when he was eighty-one years of age that it has been preserved and is exhibited with the family relics. Capt. Snow after resigning from mercantile business was appointed Selectman, and was actively engaged in affairs until 1841. His Revolutionary service was as member of the Committee of Safety. In his old age he removed with his wife to Providence, where he died March 23, 1849, in his 88th year.

died July 19, 1828, aged 62 years, 11 mos., 9 days. They are both buried in the family lot at Swan Point Cemetery, Providence.

The following is a copy of a deed for property transferred to Daniel by his father, June 22, 1786, and recorded on Book 21, page 407.

At the same time this half of the house was deeded to Daniel, the other half was deeded to his brother James. The father deeded at the same time property in the same locality to Mary, wife of Deacon Stephen Wardwell, and Joseph. These four children were the only ones then of age, Joseph being less than one month over twenty-one.

Eliza Dexter Nightingale, of Cumberland, R. I.; she died Feb. 24, 1893; William died Aug. 26, 1872. William Cory Snow's early days were spent at Little Compton, R. I. He moved with his parents to Providence in 1804, where he attended the school located on the hill west of Chestnut Street, over which the Rev. James Wilson presided. At the age of thirteen he entered the grocery store of John Young as clerk, remaining there until 1811, when he was appointed clerk in the Providence Post Office, Benjamin West being at that time postmaster. He remained at the post office several years, and then secured a situation as clerk with Messrs. Smith & Sessions, who were agents of the Providence Manufacturing Company. The factory was located at Warwick, and was the origin of what is now known as the Crompton Company. He remained with this firm until 1820, when he became connected with the Providence Calendering Company, having charge of their books until 1835, when he was made agent and treasurer of the corporation. Upon the organization of the Arcade Bank in 1831, he was elected Cashier. He discharged the duties of Cashier, and devoted his time after bank hours to the books of the Calendering Company. He filled the position of treasurer of the last named corporation from 1831 until his death, having served the Company for fifty-two years. He was a member of the School Committee in Providence for twenty-eight years in succession, about fifteen years treasurer of the Providence Charitable Fuel Society, six years a trustee of the Providence Reform School, and several years a member of the State Legislature. At the age of twenty-five he united with the Beneficent Congregational Church of Providence, and a year later was elected Deacon, which office he held until his death.

Mr. Snow's father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, were house carpenters, and the latter, Deacon James Snow, of the Beneficent Congregational Church in Providence, assisted in the erection of the first church edifice on Broad Street, while the first pastor of the Society, Rev. Joseph Snow, was a brother of his grandfather. Mr. Snow was educated in the public schools of Providence, and at the age of fourteen was employed for a short time by Newton Carpenter, a merchant tailor. In 1833, he entered the wholesale and retail drug house of John H. Mason & Co., in Providence, and was subsequently in the employ of Earl P. Mason and Earl P. Mason & Co., Benjamin M. Jackson being a member of the latter firm. In 1856 Mr. Jackson retired, and Mr. Snow and George L. Claflin, a fellow clerk, became associated with Earl P. Mason, and continued under the old firm name of Earl P. Mason & Co. Other changes occurred in 1859 and 1865, and in 1866 a new firm was organized, consisting of Messrs. Snow, Claflin and Mason, under the style of Snow, Claflin & Co., Mr. Mason being special partner. In 1872 the partnership expired by limitation, and a new firm was formed, but Mr. Snow was obliged to retire on account of ill health. His experience in the drug trade extended over a period of forty years, and the business of his firm became the largest of the kind in the State. The house is now known as George L. Claflin Co.

Saturday, Aug. 3, 1822; d. Thursday, Dec. 22, 1892, aged 70 years. Like his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather before him, he followed the occupation of a carpenter. When gas was first introduced into Providence for lighting purposes, he was engaged in preparing many of the business blocks and residences in that city for its successful introduction. At the time when A. & W. Sprague erected their capacious mill at Baltic, Conn., he had charge of all the steam piping arrangements, and many months intervened before the work was finally accomplished. It was considered an extensive contract in those days, and received favorable comment. He afterwards returned to his former occupation as a carpenter, and later engaged in the coal business, in which pursuit he continued until his retirement from business in 1895 on account of ill-health. Immediately after his marriage he went to keeping house at the southeast corner of Elm and Hospital Streets. In 1849 he built the house at No. 144 Elm Street, which he moved into and where he continued to reside during the remainder of his life.

Oct. 18, 1825; d. Feb. 1, 1897, dau. of Jonathan and Cynthia (Hathaway) Pike). Edwin d. at Providence, R. I., Dec. 22, 1888. Dr. Snow received his early education in the common schools in Pomfret, Vt., and different academies in neighboring towns, entering Brown University in September, 1840. In 1848 the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him by his alma mater. After his graduation he spent two years in teaching and in pursuing a course of study with a view of entering the medical profession. In 1847 he continued his medical studies with Dr. W. D. Buck, in Manchester, N. H., and graduated in medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, March, 1849. In June of that year he began the practice of medicine at Holyoke, Mass. In November, 1850, he removed to Providence, R. I., where he continued the practice of medicine, and was soon afterwards appointed physician of the Eastern District of the Providence Dispensary. In May, 1855, he was elected a member of the Common Council of Providence, and was appointed City Registrar of Births, Marriages and Deaths, July 1, 1855, and also Health Physician and Health Officer at Quarantine. The office of Superintendent of Health was established in June, 1856, and he was chosen to fill that position, which he held until his death. He was appointed to superintend the census of Providence in July, 1855; was Superintendent of the State Census of Rhode Island in 1865 and in 1875; and was Supervisor of Census for the District of Rhode Island in the National Census of 1880. In the spring of 1863, he was appointed Inspector of Hospitals by the United States Sanitary Commission, and spent several weeks in examining the military hospitals in Philadelphia and vicinity, and in visiting the Army of the Potomac opposite Fredericksburg. He was a delegate from Rhode Island to the International Prison Congress in London, July, 1872. From May, 1866, to May, 1869, he was an Inspector of the Rhode Island State Prison, and a member and Secretary of the Board of State Charities and Corrections from the time it came into operation, June 1, 1869, until December 6, 1872, when he resigned. In 1850 he was elected a member of the Rhode Island Medical Society; in 1853, of the American Medical Association; was Secretary of the State Medical Society from June 30, 1852, to June 6, 1855; President of the same Society from 1876 to 1877, and for several years Secretary of the Providence Medical Society. In December, 1868, he was sent as a delegate from the State to a convention held at that time in Springfield, Ill., in relation to the Texas cattle disease; and was a member and chairman of the Rhode Island Cattle Commission from 1871 to 1872, and from May, 1875, to May, 1878. From 1874 to 1878 he was chairman of the State Commission which built the new State Prison in Cranston. He was sent as a delegate from the United States Government to the International Statistical Congress, which met in St. Petersburg, Russia, August, 1872. During the same season he made an extended tour on the continent and through the British Isles. Dr. Snow was one of the original founders of the American Public Health Association organized in 1872; Vice-President of the same, 1872–74, and President in 1875–76. In June, 1855, he was elected a Trustee of the Providence Reform School, and continued in this office by an annual election for twenty-five years, declining a re-election in 1880. In 1876 he was elected a Trustee in Brown University. He was widely and favorably known at home and abroad for his extensive knowledge in his special departments of study, and for his sterling qualities of character.

On the 14th of June, 1840, he united with the Baptist Church in New Hampton, N. H., and on the 21st of November, 1850, transferred his relations to the First Baptist Church of Providence, which was then under the pastoral charge of Rev. James N. Granger, D. D.
